Film details China's attacks on U.S. economy

DAYTON, OHIO

More than 100 IUE-CWA members, retirees and their families packed a movie theatre in the suburbs of Dayton for an exclusive showing of a new documentary, "Death by China."

Viewers learned how China is poisoning the U.S. environment, consumer goods and economy with lax worker and environmental standards and illegal trade subsidies.

Since the United States fully opened its markets to China in 2001, more than 50,000 American factories have disappeared and America owes $3 trillion to the world's largest totalitarian nation.

The film is equally harsh on both Democrats and Republicans who sold allowing China's entry into the World Trade Organization as benefiting this country when all it did was allow

A worker in China makes the cheap plastic toys the country is known for.

President Clark addresses the crowd after the documentary. "Pretty frightening, isn't it?" he asked.

multinational corporations to speed up outsourcing.

In addition, China's government immediately launched an attack on the U.S. economy with "weapons of job destruction" such as currency manipulation, illegal export subsidies, counterfeiting and piracy.

China's manufacturers also keep prices low by abusing the environment and workers. Many products coming out of China are the result of forced and prison labor.

Chinese dissident Harry Wu outlines the beatings, torture and even organ harvesting those who oppose the government.

Additionally, American consumers are paying more than they bargained for the cheap goods with illnesses and deaths linked to arsenic and other poisons in the Chinese-produced products.

"Congress must take action to bring fairness to American businesses and workers," said Sharen Neuhardt, a Democratic congressional candidate (OH-10) who addressed the crowd at the movie's conclusion.

She pledged to support legislation sponsored by Ohio Sen. Sherrod Brown and Congressman Tim Ryan (OH-17) to end China's currency manipulation which keeps prices of Chinese goods artificially low.

"IUE-CWA members have lost jobs because this nation wants to consume cheap goods," said President Jim Clark. "This movie makes clear that there is no free lunch and ultimately our country will pay dearly if it continues to ignore China's aggressive economic actions."

court challenge—are minorities and seniors.

Florida AFL-CIO Legislative and Political Director Rich Templin challenged attendees to get out and do the hard work. Explaining the advancements in targeting voters for mailing and precinct walks, he pointed out that the basics remain true: "Labor must engage in one-on-one, direct contact with our members."

The Division meeting was preceded with a Diversity Caucus and the Division's first Next Generation Meeting.

"We must ensure that we not only build coalitions with other progressive groups," said Clark, "but also make sure we include everyone within our own union family."

At the Diversity Caucus, attendees were educated on the AFL-CIO constituency groups and how they could join or start chapters.

Committees were put together both from that group and the Next Generation — targeting those 35 and younger — to explore next steps in building educational tools and a sustainable program.

Following the main day of political education, the Division reviewed the CWA Ready for the Future information with the group. This built on other regional workshops on the material where the Division is collecting feedback on local leaders' views for setting CWA's priorities and changing its financial and governing structure to meet those priorities.

E-learning on Division website

DAYTON, OHIO

IUE-CWA has modernized its website with a new look and new features.

The biggest is a training section that offers local officers and stewards the ability to take on-line modules in everything from how to handle difficult people to processing a grievance and understanding the CWA dues process.

The training is open to all IUE-CWA members, though you must create a secure account to access it.

Once the courses are completed, students can request a certificate of achievement.

New modules will be added going forward and suggestions on topics are welcome.

"This on-line training complements the face-to-face educational conferences we hold," said IUE-CWA President Jim Clark. "We must make use of technology to give our members affordable access to the training they need when they need it. Too often smaller locals have no treasury to attend meetings or the officer change happens when no training is scheduled. The e-learning approach bridges that gap."

For training, go to www.iue-cwa.org.

RETIRES ENJOY DAYTON HEALTH FAIR

Among the many screening, retirees could get their blood pressure checked.

Below, postcard invites doubled as entries for cash prizes, gift cards and other winnings. Below left, President Clark makes one retiree happy with a $500 check, which were given away hourly.

Dayton's minor league baseball mascot, Heater, wandered the grounds of Carillon Park, the historical museum that now houses IUE-CWA's Last Truck off the General Motors assembly line as well as documenting the region's rich history of innovation.

The Veterans Affairs Department worked with retirees who served in the military to ensure that they could receive all the benefits owed to them.

The chow line: so many turned out on the beautiful fall day that pizza had to be ordered to supplement.

✦ Less Help for the Jobless. As governor, Romney proposed scaling back unemployment insurance costs by paying benefits for fewer weeks; similar to plans enacted by Tea Party governors such as Rich Scott (Fla.) and Scott Walker (Wis.).

✦ Job Training Funds Slashed. As governor, Romney vetoed $11 million in job training funds.

WORKERS' RIGHTS

✦ Protecting American Workers. President Obama called the efforts to curb collective bargaining in states an "assault on unions" and recognized public employees "make enormous contributions to our states and our citizens."

HEALTH CARE

➤ 32 Million Americans Covered. President Obama's historic healthcare reform law expanded healthcare coverage to an additional 32 million uninsured Americans.

➤ Quality Coverage Regardless of Pre-Existing Conditions or Illness. The law prevents people with pre-existing conditions from being denied quality insurance coverage and prohibits insurance companies from dropping people due to illness.

➤ Coverage for Young Adults and Children. Parents are allowed to keep their children on their health plans until age 26. President Obama gave 11 million children coverage under the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP).

➤ Under Romney, Insurance Costs Rose By 20 Percent. Romney's 2006 healthcare reform plan in Massachusetts helped insure half a million people but failed to curb overall costs for policyholders. In fact, the median premium rose by more than 20 percent between 2005 and 2009.

➤ Children Denied In-State Tuition. As governor, Romney opposed in-state tuition for children of undocumented immigrants.

Steps to Protect Your Vote on Election Day

- 1. Call the local elections office to verify the location of your polling place. Locations may have changed, and a vote cast at the wrong place might not get counted.
- 2. Bring identification to the polls, preferably a government-issued photo ID with your name and registered street address.
- 3. Ask for help from poll workers and check posted information signs if you have questions or need assistance.

4. Make sure you cast a vote. If you are in a line when the polls close, stay in line because you are entitled to vote.

5. If you are offered a provisional ballot, ask if you can cast a regular ballot by providing additional ID or by going to another polling place. If no alternative is available or practical, cast a provisional ballot.

6. If you have a voting rights problem, ask to speak to the chief election official or a voting rights volunteer at the polls, or call the toll-free nationwide election Protection Hotline, 1-866-OUR-VOTE, a project of a coalition of groups, including the AFL-CIO, promoting voting rights.

Union scholarship opportunities abound

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Need help paying for college next year? Your union has plenty of scholarship opportunities to make paying tuition a little easier.

Information on 17 different IUE-CWA scholarships ranging from $1,000 to $3,000 will be listed mid-November at www.iue-cwa.org.

"These scholarships are a benefit of membership and should be taken advantage of," said IUE-CWA President Jim Clark. "A college education is costly, but some scholarships cut out deserving middle-class students because their families earn more than some arbitrary amount. These scholarships are available based on union membership and interest, not finances."

Applications also are being taken for a scholarship aimed at advancing the skills of IUE-CWA local leaders.

The Edward Fire Continuing Education Scholarship is available to any IUE-CWA member enrolling in continuing union education classes at the George Meany Center for Labor Studies — National Labor College.

This unique scholarship allows trade unionists to take a course or series of courses that will help develop and strengthen his or her trade unionist skills in areas such as collective bargaining, arbitrations, organizing and other topics that will improve the member's ability to be active and contribute to the strength and growth of the union.

The scholarship will cover tuition, room and board and reasonable transportation costs.

Applications and further information can be found at www.iue-cwa.org under the "Member Resources" tab.

Salem, Va. Local 161 was the main proponent behind restarting the region's annual Labor Day parade. "We must show the community we are still here and we are strong," says President Vickie Hurley.

Leaders urged to mobilize members for Labor 2012

LAKE BUENA VISTA, FLA.

With the 2012 elections just around the corner, IUE-CWA gathered top local leaders for a meeting meant to educate, inspire and mobilize.

"We cannot sit back and mourn what wasn't completed," said IUE-CWA President Clark. "We must celebrate the advancements and make sure this country keeps moving forward with strong leadership that values American workers."

Clark and other speakers emphasized the clear cut differences between President Obama and his challenger, Mitt Romney.

For Dave Foster, a former director with the Steelworkers who now leads the BlueGreen Alliance, Romney's principles while at this venture capital firm, Bain Capital, were quite personal as he supervised the bankruptcy negotiations at GSI, a steel company in Kansas City, Mo., that saw hundreds of USW members lose their jobs and pensions.

"By loading up the company with an unsustainable level of debt, Bain Capital and its CEO, Mitt Romney, took the $100 million owed its employees, put it in their own pockets and pushed the company off the cliff," he recounted. "It wasn't the way to create jobs in the 20th century; and it's sure not the way to create jobs in 2012. It's not a hiring plan. It's a firing plan."

Romney also has made it clear in his infamous op-ed entitled "Let Detroit Go Bankrupt" that he disdains working families. The Obama-led auto industry bailout has saved the U.S. auto industry and created hundreds of thousands of new jobs, many in IUE-CWA which still represents major auto parts suppliers.

Attendees also heard in depth about the benefits of the Affordable Care Act that Romney has sworn to repeal immediately if he took the White House.

Under President Obama's health care reform law more than $2 billion already has been rebated thanks to limits on what insurance companies can spend on salaries and marketing. Seniors have saved another $4.9 billion from provisions closing the gap in the prescription drug doughnut hole.

Other benefits in place include:

- ☛ Coverage for children up to age 26 on their parents' insurance.
- ☛ Insurance for those with pre-existing conditions. Currently in special pools but in 2014 no plans can exclude.
- ☛ Elimination of pre-existing condition exclusions for children.

Eddie Hailes of the Advancement Project describes how many voters may see their rights taken away this year. To protect your right to vote, look for tips on page 5.

☛ Coverage of dozens of preventive care screenings.

☛ Prohibiting insurance companies from dropping coverage due to minor errors on applications.

☛ Lifting of lifetime and annual limits on benefits.

☛ Improved ability to appeal claim denials to outside, neutral panels.

☛ Simplified explanation of coverage.

☛ Incentives for employers to provide early retiree coverage.

"Millions of people have better access to care and improved care because of these changes," said Clark. "This is an important first step to reining in health care costs and reducing the impact during collective bargaining."

A big fear this year is that tens of thousands of voters may not be able to exercise their constitutional right to cast a ballot because of voting limitations being implemented in many states.

These take the form of rolling back early voting opportunities to requiring identification at the polls.

"When you have to pay to get an ID, that's a poll tax," said Eddie Hailes, general counsel of the Advancement Project. "When you were born with a midwife on a rural farm, have voted your entire life and suddenly are told you can't, that's outrageous."

Studies show that those who will be impacted the hardest by the new laws—most of which are still undergoing a (continued on page 2)

Division members help launch safer chemicals database

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Workers wanting safer workplaces now have a new tool to help them thanks to the launch of the ChemHAT — Chemical Hazard and Alternatives Toolkit — database.

The idea for the free online database, which can be accessed at www.chemhat.org, developed from IUE-CWA's work with the BlueGreen Alliance.

"Workers around the country deserve to know what dangers are presented by the chemicals they work with every day, but that information was too difficult to come by in many cases," said IUE-CWA President Jim Clark. "Working with the BlueGreen Alliance, we were able to help jumpstart this important resource that is easy-to-use and ensures no worker ever has to be caught unaware of the dangers their workplace poses to them and their community."

IUE-CWA members held several workshops to talk through design and functionality.

The database is the first to pull together multiple sources into an easily understandable report on the dangers and possible exposure methods of thousands of hazardous chemicals.

Workers can quickly look up 10,000 commonly used chemicals and see their acute and chronic health effects, and learn what protective equipment they should use.

In the near future, the database will provide the ability for users to identify safer alternatives to the chemicals they are using.

"Since the federal government has not been able to pass legislation to adequately protect America's workers from the harmful effects of hazardous CWA, the United Steelworkers, United Auto Workers and Communications Workers of America. The workers examined existing databases and discussed what was needed to make a tool that would be easy and accessible to the widest range of people.

"ChemHAT is the first chemical information source geared specifically for workers, who are of course, at the most risk of exposure. ChemHAT is exactly what we need to make sure we chemicals, the ChemHAT database will allow workers and businesses to make their own informed decisions about the chemicals they use everyday and the risks they take," said David Foster, executive director of the BlueGreen Alliance.

ChemHAT was designed by more than 130 workers represented by IUE-can easily get the knowledge we need to be safe on the job," said Ernest Pacheco, District Energy/Environmental Program Coordinator for CWA District 9 in California. "Perhaps even more importantly—especially in light of our inadequate current toxics regulations—is that it helps to reframe the issue to what it should have been for decades now to:

'what should we be using instead of this dangerous chemical?'"

ChemHAT draws on the Healthy Building Network's (HBN) Pharos Project, Chemical and Material Library (CML), which includes a wide range of acute and chronic health effects ranging from skin rashes and eye irritants to birth defects, nervous system disorders and cancer. The database also identifies how workers most commonly come in contact with the materials, what available safety precautions they should take and what alternatives are available.

"Myself working in a chemical factory, it was an honor being a part of the process of this project. If one person is helped or kept safer, that will be great," said Dale Barrett, a IUE-CWA Local 755 member who has worked at DuBois Chemicals since 1978 and currently in the maintenance department for the company in Ohio.

"People like me are the first line of defense against dangerous chemical accidents in our workplace, community and environment," said Debra Fisher, an IUE-CWA member from Dayton, Ohio who works at Dmax, a parts supplier for the auto industry. "Now, if I have a question about what risks or how to handle something, I have a resource that I helped create that I know will give me what I need, when I need it."
